Joel: Hello everyone! My name is Joel, and I am a member. This week is the week of student revolts, and I'm standing here today as the leader of Students for Palestine Trondheim's action committee. Previously, last month, we took action when Palantir tried to groom Norwegian students into working for their genocidal imperialist machine.

This coming Thursday, the 5th of November, at 5:00, Kongsbergruppen, for a dinner, are inviting Trondheim students, as they've done previously, to contribute to the imperialist war machine. Kongsberggruppen are the same people who are making money off killing Palestinian, Iranian, Yemeni and Lebanese children.

I'm now standing here as the leader and in charge of this revolt against Kongsberg and against the imperialist machine. We are encouraging everyone present, everyone watching and everyone listening to take action with us on the 5th of November against Kongsberg. We're always talking about raising awareness, but this is an opportunity for direct action against one of the largest contributors to the genocide of Palestinians, Lebanese, Yemenis, Syrians and Iranians.

We will meet you in the streets. Thank you!

Ulrik: Honourable Storsal! My name is Ulrik, and I'm a member. I fucking hate Halloween. It's a day that bears witness to unsustainability and cultural decay.

However, I'm thrilled to see that all our events at samfundet are sold out tonight. And I would like to inform you all that there is a special offer in the bar for just 199 kroner per bottle.

Thank you!

6. Announcement from Finansieringsutvalget

Jonas: Hello everyone! My name is Jonas, and I am a member. On the 1st of August this year, the option to prolong the partnership with Reitan for the Student Society expired. All right, in English this is going to be hard, but it's all right. I'll take my time. We tried for most of the year to prolong that agreement, because the economic upside was, to put it shortly, pretty huge. We and Reitan had a great deal of differences, and because of that, we started looking for other partners.

I say this today because I wanted to do it at the first possible occasion. The thing is that both our board and the board of another firm have agreed on a new deal. This is information, not a celebration. The deal is not signed. This is simply information for our members to know that we are currently negotiating a deal with a partner that, I'm sorry to say, we cannot disclose the name of because of marketing and, how can I say, tactical reasons, basically. It would be unwise for us to disclose the name of this partner before the deal is signed.

But what I can say is that they have, more often than us in our talks, asked about ethics and sustainability in our organization. It is a partner that places a very high emphasis on ethics and sustainability. And we are not stupid. The people in this Society who work on these kinds of deals are very much aware of what the student body thinks about firms that produce oil, manufacture weapons and break ethical codes.

What I can say is that this deal is considerably better than the Reitan deal. It includes an annual sum. It includes the total renovation of the old room, Knaus. It includes support for fees and licenses, and for things that Samfundet wouldn't normally try to do because of our economic situation. For example, bringing someone from the United States, or from wherever in the world, to this sofa here. And we estimate the total value of the deal to be between 30 and 35 million kroner.

I don't want this deal solely because of the economic aspect. Samfundet has had negative financial results for years, and the trend is negative. You can't just pump in a lot of money and believe that the trend will turn. But it is an upside, and I want this deal because it's positive for our activities. I want Knaus, and it's positive for our economy. The deal is not expected to be signed before the end of this year.

So any questions, any criticism, anything at all can, of course, be raised from this podium, directed to the Board, to me personally, or to Jakob, who has been involved with us in working on this deal.

Thank you!

7. Speech by Eline Norli
8. Introduction by the speakers
9. Sofa chat
10. Break
11. Sofa chat with questions from the audience

Thor: Honourable Storsal! My name is Thor, and I'm a member. I had the great honour of sharing a couple of beers with Tijana a couple of days ago. It was almost like an interview from my side, but she was very pleasant.

We talked about the student newspaper, Under Dusken. She was really amazed by the paper quality, the glossy paper, because during the blockades, they made paper newspapers using just normal paper and a stapler. She also mentioned memes and comic panels, and laughter, as important factors in keeping up morale and hope.

And I was then wondering, for the rest of the panel, especially since the situation in Nicaragua has been ongoing since 2018 and is still ongoing: Do you have any personal stories from times when things were really bad, when morale was really low, but you somehow managed to find hope? Or do you have any personal stories about where you find hope during your activism?

Axel: My name is Axel, and I am a member. Dear panelists, it's been an honour to hear you talk today. I'm fascinated by, or rather interested in, the cost of activism. I know we've touched upon this already, particularly how much a single individual should be willing to sacrifice.

But I'm interested in how you distribute that burden. Obviously, some people will take on more of it, while others will naturally take on less. How do you make sure that individual activists don't completely burn out? Or do you feel that burnout is inevitable? How do you deal with this enormous problem?

12. Sing-along: Nu Klinger
13. AOB (Any other business)

Ida: Honourable Storsal! My name is Ida, and I'm a member. I'm also lucky enough to be Head of the Participant Section in ISFiT-27, and I feel incredibly grateful to be able to invite 400 students to come here in February to share in discussions such as these, where we can hear everyone's opinions and experiences. I hope that many of you who are in this room right now are going to participate in the events happening during ISFiT, where we get to hear what's going on around the world in a very unique way.

And on that note, we do have a recruitment period going on right now. So I would really, really encourage everyone to apply to be a volunteer and help make this happen. Because meeting places such as ISFiT are extremely important in a world where we often only hear one side of everything, and where we don't even know what's going on in our neighbouring countries.

And I would especially encourage you to apply to be a workshop facilitator. As a workshop facilitator, you'll have your own group of ISFiT participants. You'll get to know them personally, hear their stories firsthand and facilitate great dialogue and discussion

Thank you!

14. Criticism of the meeting

Axel: Honourable Storsal! My name is Axel, and I'm a member. I think this has been an amazing meeting, but it is a celebration meeting, and we haven't cheered at all! So I would like to propose a toast to our honourable panelists, and especially to the election results in Serbia. Thank you! Sorry, I think I've had too little of this.

Okay, cheers everyone!

15. Meeting is adjourned
